RECLAIMING INDEPENDENCE

Partnering with Community Brain Injury Services helps build back lives

Experiencing a brain injury is a life-altering event that impacts the individual, the caregiver, and the entire community supporting the individual. The individuals we support are navigating the resulting lifelong disability they have as a result of their brain injury.

Community Brain Injury Services helps brain injury survivors build back independence by helping individuals set up needed supports to live independently safely, reengage with their community, return to competitive employment, and offer supports within a supportive network of peers.

There is one thing
we rely on that makes our efforts a success

HOW YOUR SPONSORSHIP HELPS

Corporate and individual support are the building blocks to the foundation of independence

A Place to Go

Community Brain Injury Services is most well known for our Clubhouse-model vocational rehabilitation programs. We operate two programs, The Mill House in Richmond, and The Denbigh House in Newport News and help individuals work on the socioemotional, cognitive, and behavioral changes following a brain injury. The Clubhouse programs also offer an array of vocational services and emphasizes the power of work.

Community Supports

Building back towards independence includes setting up the needed supports in the community to ensure health, safety, and accessibility for each individual. This looks different for each person. Our skilled case managers work with the survivor and their treatment team to put into place the appropriate resources and supports.

Strengthening Support Systems

No person should face a challenge on one's own. At CBIS it's equally important to support the caregiver and treatment team so that no one is navigating this road alone. CBIS offers Caregiver support groups and events, and embraces a team-based approach in ensuring everyone receives the supports they need.
